

5.3.4 Accompanying documentation

Officers may examine the documents covering the declaration and any accompanying documents. The Customs Authorities may require the declarant to present other documents for the purpose of verifying the accuracy of the particulars contained in the declaration (Article 188 UCC refers). Where previously when documents were uploaded via MyEnquiries when declarations were lodged via AEP, documents can now be directly inputted into AES when lodging a declaration.

Where a customs declaration is green-routed, the declarant must retain the accompanying documents endorsed with customs declaration number/date, for three years from the end of the year in which the declaration is accepted (Article 51 UCC refers) and produce them to Revenue if requested (Article 15 UCC refers).

Documents such as invoices, documents claiming temporary relief from duty, INF documents, air waybills, and VAT-free authorisations may be accepted electronically. There are situations where the production of original documents is mandatory such as proofs of origin / preferential status or certain licences where the original must be physically endorsed by Revenue so as to meet the needs of the issuing agency. However, Revenue reserve the right to insist on an original document if considered necessary in any instance.

5.3.5 Export licences

Where the customs declaration has been green-routed, export licences are to be endorsed by the declarant and retained with the accompanying documents. In the case of red/orange routings the licence must be produced; if licences are required at other export stations and cannot be retained, a photocopy including the endorsed area is to be retained.

5.3.6 Customs declaration covering more than one article

Where a customs declaration covers two or more articles, the particulars relating to each article are to be regarded as constituting a separate declaration.

Component parts of industrial plant coming under a single CN Code are to be regarded as constituting a single item of goods.
