

3.7 Split Exportation

In the case of split exportation / partial exit in unforeseen circumstances via the same office of exit, the trader at exit should send an arrival at exit message (IE507) and indicate storage of the goods. An exit release notification message (IE525) will inform the trader the goods can be stored. The trader should lodge a manifest presentation message (IE547) to cover the goods that are subsequently exported, and a manifest validation message (IE548) will be issued in response. The exit notification message (IE590) should only be submitted once all goods associated with the original export declaration MRN have exited.

In the case of split exportation in unforeseen circumstances via several different offices of exit, the office of exit where the consignment was first presented shall collect the exit results from the other offices of exit and shall inform the office of export of the exit of the goods. They may do so only when all the goods have left the customs territory of the Union.

(Article 333 (4) and (8) of the UCC IA refer)

3.8 AES - evidence that the goods have left the Union.

In the case of indirect exports using AES, the trader at exit should lodge an arrival at exit message (IE507) at the customs office of exit. The carrier at exit should lodge an exit notification message (IE590) to confirm exit of the goods.

AES changes: Since March 2023, AES has generated the export MRN, and this will be required for new arrival at exit (IE507) and exit notification (IE590) messages. Indirect Exports commenced in AES from 21 March 2023, will receive responses through AES. More information on AES can be found here.

Where after 90 days from the release of goods for export, the office of export has not received the exit results message, it may, at its own initiative, start an enquiry procedure with the request on non-exited export message (IE582). The office of export shall, at the request of the person who lodged the customs declaration, start an enquiry procedure - even before the 90 days have elapsed - where the person who lodged the customs declaration has information that the goods have left the customs territory of the Union, and requests an inquiry.

That evidence may be provided by one of the following means or a combination thereof:

- (a) A copy of the delivery note signed or authenticated by the consignee outside the customs territory of the Union; or
