

The essential difference between An Post and postal service operators is that the former is required to provide a full range of specified services covering all aspects of postal operation whilst the latter can determine for themselves those aspects in which they wish to be involved.

8.5.3 Checks to be carried out on all postal service operators.

It is important that officers are aware of all postal service operators in their Region. At a minimum, officers must establish the extent of the operator's involvement in the postal business, be it a local, national, or international service.

Once the level of involvement in the postal business is established, Regions should carry out a risk assessment on each company particularly if international traffic is involved.