The AIS Trader Guide contains detailed information on the different declaration types that can be lodged into AIS and their corresponding data elements.

6.2.2 Applications

A trader and/or their Customs agent must be approved by the AIS eCustoms Helpdesk (application forms are available for download on the Revenue website) and be in receipt of a digital certificate from ROS in order to make an electronic declaration.

6.2.3 Registration

All AIS customers (agents/importers/exporters) are registered or will automatically be registered once they quote one of the AIS acceptable registration numbers on a customs declaration. All traders must also have an EORI number if importing goods regularly and this is the only number that will be accepted on a customs declaration. Customers who have been issued with a five-digit CAE number (Trader Account Number) prior to 01 June 1997 will continue to use this for method of payment purposes. New customers will receive an eight-digit CAE number. The CAE and the EORI number allocated as a result of the registration are required for Deferred Payment approval. Registration for other import and export functions will be carried out by the eCustoms Account Unit in conjunction with the granting of these approvals.

6.2.4 Payments

Payment for any tax and duties arising on a customs declaration must be collected or secured before the goods are released. Payments of the following charges can be made by cash or by using Revenue's deferred payment facility:

- Customs Duty
- Excise Duty
- VAT at import.

Cash payments can be made into a TAN account/Customs account by using Revenue's online payment facility, in ROS or myAccount. Payments can be made by credit card, debit card or single debit instruction.

The Customs Deferred Payment Facility (Bank Direct Debit) is a facility whereby traders and/or their agents are authorised to defer payment of customs duties. Authorisation will require provision of a bank guarantee/cash deposit and compliance with the conditions of the authorisation. Once approved, payment of taxes and duties arising may be deferred for payment by direct debit to the 15th day of the following month.
